Abstract

The research is about identifying the customers around campus hostels who buy kicomando through observations and experimentations . customers with bags, polythene papers, smart phones and those resting near or close to areas selling kicomando form a good group to aid my research.

The research targets youth mainly students,young businessmen and women among few unlisted groups.

1 Introduction

The report is all about identifying a person who buys the kicomando in secret without being noticed.

The kicomando are chapatti mixed commonly with beans source or meat but rarely Ground nuts .

It is commonly sold around campus hostels thus commonly bought by students but other working personnel may buy too.

Customers are students or anyone buying kicomando.

2 METHODOLOGY

2.1 The methods of data collection were:

1. The information was collected through experimentally buying the kicomando myself in secret and:
2. Through observing the students and other people doing the same. the following were tools used to collect information and data
 - LATEX
 - WORD

3 FINDINGS

3.1 the following are some of the facts that were able to be concluded based my research

- The customers normally buy kicomando on hot sunny or evening when people cannot take clear focus on them.
- Ever with smart phones pretending to be or on social media chatting while they are packing for them.
- They normally carry bags, even colored polythene papers in which to place it after it is packed.
- They carry packed kicomando home or on rare occasions eat from where they buy it while sitting in the corners to avoid being noticed.
